PIONEER RESIDENT TO LEAVE HERE FOR OTHER SCENES

First White Boy Born in Redwood City Plans to go. Life Spans Time Since Beginning of Town

(By D. E. O'KEEFE)

Shortly after the first of the coming year, Chase Littlejohn, the first white boy born in Redwood City, will move from his old home on Warren street to another part of the state, perhaps to Los Angeles, or Berkeley or Palo Alto. He has not as yet decided to which locality he will go. Having disposed of his city block of property on Warren street, he has decided to spend the remaining years in another clime, maybe far from his boyhood home.

Around the ancient domicile cluster many memories for him for it was here he came as a boy of fourteen and here he grew to manhood and passed his older years. There were no houses around the locality of the old home when he came with his father, the late William Littlejohn, to live on Warren street which was then unheard of. The elder Littlejohn owned the adjoining 36 acres of land which later became known as the Redwood City gardens and from these gardens the town was served with fresh vegetables every day for a half century and up until a few years ago, when the land became worn out and would respond no longer to intensive cultivation by the Italian owners.

As a boy Mr. Littlejohn became interested in hunting and fishing, and later became an authority in bird life. By constant study of wild game he won fame as a naturalist and an ornithologist of national eminence, having secured specimens for the Smithsonian Institute at Washington and the University of California museum. In his youth he hunted on the local marshes, traversing every bit of it and knowing every inch of lowlands about Redwood City for many miles. As for the ducks he knew their first names, knew their haunts, traits, habits and the vast varieties that inhabited this locality in large numbers in those days. He loved to stuff rare specimens for his curiosity shop. This work developed his unusual talent as a taxedermist which attracted men to him of national reputation. Some of the rare specimens of wild birds have been sent to him from many states to prepare them for national museums.

William Littlejohn, a wheelwright by occupation, came to Searsville in 1852 and erected two saw mills for Dennis Martin, who was then owner of the Pulgas rancho, which included the territory from the mountains to the bay in this section On the mountainous portion of the big grant overlooking Redwood City, which was a vast growth of virgin timber that was cutdown by Martin and sent to Redwood City for shipment to the San Francisco market.

When Littlejohn finished his work he came to Redwood City, then called Embarcadero and little later Mezesville, where he remained for a few days before going to his former home in San Francisco. A few friends persuaded him to locate here and he did, buying a strip of land or rather a city block lying between Washington and Webster streets, on Broadway and where the Intermediate school and the Carnegie library are now located. Here Mr. Littlejohn built a modest home for himself and wife in 1853. In this little dwelling Chase Littlejohn saw the light of day in 1855. He was the first white boy born in this city, but not the first white child, as two girls, twins, Carry and Mary Tyler, were born the year previous. All three spent their childhood together and went to the same school.

On the Littlejohn home was drifted an overflowing artesian well, the waste water from which found its way into the creek in the rear of the property. The fresh water attracted wild ducks by the hundreds and here they came to quench their thirsts. Chase Littlejohn, as a boy ten, often shot teal, widgeon and mallards from the back porch of his home, his faithful setter, bringing them into the kitchen. The creek was wider then and the tide backed a big volume of water and as the tide receded the ducks would come for the fresh water that lay in the creek bed. The boys in those by-gone days enjoyed sports that the youngster of today would give worlds if they had them, for a few moments of such sport, but the day of hunting in this section has passed forever.

Mr. Littlejohn in his reminiscent moods often tells of his early school days in Redwood City when it was difficult to secure teachers and school rooms for a bare dozen of youngsters willing and ready to learn the three R's. Mr. Littlejohn tells of one year when no school room could be gotten in town, so the teacher, a charming young and flaming haired maiden in her teens, started school under a big live oak tree some where near where the depot is now located. The boys perched themselves on the lower branches of the towering oak and in that uncomfortable position would learn their geograpny and spelling, while the young teacher would be seated at the foot of the tree. Sometimes the boys would become rambuncious and rebelled at the discipline of the pretty young maiden and when she attempted to punish them they would scamper up the tree and to the outer branches and hang on, perhaps like progenitors did centuries ago only in a different way. The modest little teacher would not dare follow the youngsters. Maybe the demure school marm of today would accomplish the feat, her modern dress would be no hinderance to her in the climb. Among the pupils that attended with Mr. Littlejohn the school in the tree were the late P. H. McEvoy, John F. Ford, the local taxi man. The greater number of those who went to that school have gone to the world beyond and the little red headed teacher has also passed out, but rot from the mind of Mr. Littlejohn who will always cherish the memory of his first school teacher. Later on good school facilities were secured by the enterprising citizens of that time.

The elder Littlejohn adorned his home with rare plants and trees. One day in 1857 he placed an English walnut in the ground, watered and cared for it and finally it grew to a big tree. It is the only thing that now remains on the old home to remind Mr. Littlejohn of his former playgrounds. The massive tree stands just in front of the library. It has grown tall and its wide-spreading branches afford shade to a large portion of the surrounding lawn to which children and grown-ups come to enjoy the cool air during the hot weather under the mammoth tree planted nearly seventy years ago when Redwood City was in its infancy. The tree is an old bachelor and has never borne fruit. Had Mr. Littlejohn planted companion trees, there would have been enough fruit on the tree to supply nuts for the entire population of Redwood City. A sister tree planted at the same time with others at Warren street, bears abundantly.

When Chase Littlejohn had reached his twenty-fourth year he courted one of Redwood City's belles, a pretty school marm, named Nellie Koen, who was a singer of ability. She taught in the local grammar school and was a charming young woman. Miss Koen was a member of Mount Carmel choir and among the members of that organization were the late D. G. Leary, a basso of more than local note and Judge E. F. Fitzpatrick who was a sweet tenor singer. Miss Koen and Mr. Littlejohn were married and lived very happily until her death some years later.

In 1897 the Sequoia Union High School bought the Littlejohn property on Broadway from Mrs. Florence Easterday, a sister of Chase Littlejohn, and the old dwelling was removed, thus removing all vestige of the former home except the old walnut tree, which in time will also go to make way for a business house, for no doubt in some future time the school property on Broadway will be converted into business holdings.

Mr. Littlejohn at an early age went north to hunt sea otter in Japan. Every spring he would seek Kurile Island to capture the otter. He knew the traits of that animal well and always would bring home big results of the year's hunt. Later Mr. Littlejohn sought the fur-bearing seal in Alaska. He became an expert in capturing the animal which brought rich returns to the owner of these precious furs. Those who went with him on these trips were his brother, George Littlejohn, and John F. Ford. When the government stopped the shooting of seal many years ago, there were no further excursions to the north by local men

In 1889 there were outfitted from San Francisco two sister ships, one by George Littlejohn that departed from the city in March of that year bound for the Alaskan waters. He was to call on his way back to get his brother, Chase, who was to leave the north in the fall. The other vessel left a few days later. The ships never reached their destination, for they must have been lost somewhere in the waters of the Pacific, for no word has ever been heard of the ill-fated vessels since their leaving the port of San Francisco. Chase Littlejohn came home heartbroken. He went back to the north in the hope of finding some tidings of the lost ships but could not find any. George Littlejohn, a sterling young man, was deeply mourned and for months the hope was indulged in by his mother and father and relatives that he would some day return. This was a sad tragedy in the life of the Littlejohns and the people of Redwood City. The Times-Gazette carried long

Legion Shoot Is Successful Affair

The committee in charge of the turkey shoot held last Sunday by the American Legion in the hills near here is enthusiastic in their report of the affair, which was a sucess from every angle. As a result of the marksmanship displayed by local Nimrods, 64 fancy young turkeys formed the piece de resistance for Thanksgiving dinners in as many homes in this section, and the Legion treasury was considerably augmented.

The targets were in good exposure and the crowd present with its continual bombardment, through the smoke screen (at times) of the fried frankfurters and rolls, furnished by the local Boy Scouts, all helped on a beautiful autumn day, to make happy.

Major Armstrong, the chairman of the committee, congratulated the boys on the splendid co-operation, and untiring efforts against many trials, toward the end that everybody was afforded a pleasant and profitable afternoon.

It is hoped to form a large Rifle Club in the near future, and plans are being laid already for another shoot to be held just before the Christmas holidays, presumably on December 20th.

The range will be enlarged to attract more of the ladies, who seemed anxious to participate with smaller calibre rifles. Much was learned by the committee on this, their first shoot, and much improvement is expected on the future affairs.

SCOUTS WORKING TO INCREASE FUNDS

The treasury of Troop No. 105 of the Boy Scouts was increased by $20 this week as the result of the efforts made by the boys in selling hot dogs at the American Legion turkey shoot held in the hills near here last Sunday. This amount will be added to the fund which the troop is raising for the expenses of their camp next year in San Mateo County Memorial Park. The scouts have been busy for several weeks securing funds for this purpose, as the treasury of the troop has been getting low owing to the fact that no solicitations have been made by the scouts since last year.

In order to aid the boys a handsome hand painted tea set has been donated by Mrs. Frank Thompson, and is on display at the Art and Floral Shop on Broadway. This will be given away at the Sequoia Theatre Tuesday night, Dec. 1, if sufficient tickets have been sold to meeet the expenses of the troop at that time.

The Scouts are asking the co-operation of the community in keeping up the work of laying the foundations for better sitizens by helping the Scouts help themselves. The boys will continue their drive for funds until the first of December. Anyone wishing to help will have a final chance at the theatre at that time.

LOCAL MEN VIEW OIL DEVELOPMENT

A number of business men of Redwood City, members of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Holms, acting secretary of that body, went to La Honda last week to view the developments being made in the oil fields at that place. All seemed favorably impressed with the outlook for oil developments in that field. Practically all of the leases were visited by the local party, who were given every opportunity to see the processes used in securing the valuable fluid.

Progress is continuing in the La Honda field and several new wells are being started. Morse & Co., a concern which recently came from Los Angeles to the new field are starting their second rig this week, and are working on their first well. This company has the first rotary outfit to be used in this field.

Work is being rushed on the number 3 well of the La Honda Oil Fields Association, and a rig is ready to start work on a fourth well as soon as their No. 3 well is brought in. The No. 3 well is expected to be completed by tomorrow, and is expected by its drillers to be one of the biggest wells north of Kern county.

In the Rolla Ellis lease, work is being rushed to a completed well before the wet weather begins. The well is at present at a depth of 745 feet, and is expected to reach oil sand at 1000 feet, within ten days. It is planned by this company to open offices here in Redwood City within the next week or two. If the wells now in course of development produce as well as is expected by their drillers, it is planned by the owners of the various leases to put in a co-operative pipe line to be used in bringing the oil to Redwood City, and the erection of a small refinery on the marsh near town from which it is planned to ship directly on vessels to points of consumption.

MAN 69 CAN STILL SPOT THE BULLEYE

The fact that he is 69 years old is no handicap to W. J. Miller of 2012 Rosevelt avenue, when it comes to hitting the bulleye with a 35-calibre rifle. Miller tried his hand at the American Legion turkey shoot last Sunday and succeeded in making a bullseye on the fourth shot. Out of six shots all were near the bullseye and one in it. This was made without the use of glasses. Miller attributes his wonderfully well preserved eyesight to the unequaled climate of Redwood City.

Plane Accident Fatal To Youth

The crumpling of a wing of the aeroplane in which he was a passenger on the local flying field last Sunday, proved fattal to Archie A. Young, youthful millionaire of Honolulu. Young was a passenger in a machine which he was having demonstrated for him by Auggy Pedlar, with the intention of purchasing the machine, which was the property of Ray Sullivan, real estate man of Palo Alto.

The plane had been piloted by Pedlar around the field in circles several times, and wat at a considerable altitude when the machine suddenly went into a nose dive, and was approaching the earth at a rate said to have been about 200 miles an hour, when Pedlar sought to straighten the plane out. The strain on the wings was too great, however, and one wing collapsed. The machine crashed to the earth and was immediately enveloped in flames.

Spectators, who had seen the accident, rushed to the scene of the fallen plane and risked their lives to drag the two men from the flaming wreckage. Young was found to be dead when taken from the plane, crushed by the giant engine, which had been driven back into the cockpit in which the young man was riding, by the force of the impact. Pedlar was severely injured and unconscious, but is still alive and is expected to recover.

Young was the grandson of Alexander Young, pioneer speculator of the Hawaiian Islands, and owned of a well-known string of hotels in that place. The young man was the son of Mrs. A. A. Young, who had taken an apartment in Palo Alto, where he was to have entered Stanford University. Two other children survive, a brother, Nelson, and a sister, Alice Pauline, both students in the University of California.

An inquest was held Tuesday at the parlors of the James Crowe Co., where it was decided that the death was accidental. The boy's body was shipped back to Honolulu Wednesday and wil be buried there.

S. P. POLICY IS TOLD COMMITTEE

"Quit kicking about the train service and let the people known what good service we really have." That is the decision of the transportation committee of the federated chambers of commerce of the peninsula, which held an interview with officials of the Southern Pacific last Wednesday. The committee, of which Elmore B. B. Hinman of this city is a member, called upon Vice-President Shoup of the Southern Pacific last Wednesday to discuss the present and future transportation needs of the peninsula.

Among the matters taken up with the railway officials were electrification, four tracking the present line, and future improvements in service In regard to electrification of the peninsula lines, Shoup stated that this is a delusion without foundation. The Southern Pacific does not contemplate electrifying the peninsula system, he stated nor would electrification be an asset to this section. Electrical service under the present conditions would be no cheaper and would not be as comfortable service as that at present given by the steam coaches.

The committee offered its services at any time that the railway needed further rights of way in order to lay additional lines of track. Shoup thanked the committee for their offer but stated that the railway company had been looking to the future, and had already secured the necessary rights of way for additional tracks. But, added Shoup, the present tracks will serve for a great increase of service yet. By adding more block signals, the service can be increased to meet the needs of the peninsula for many years yet with safety.

Shoup promised the greatest cooperation with residents of the peninsula for the Southern Pacific railway, but suggested that the residents of the peninsula check up on the service which they are now receiving and tell their friends in other parts how good it really is, instead of predicting increases, which will not be necessary for years to come.

COBURN ESTATE AGAIN CAUSE OF LEGAL ACTION

The Coburn estate, that much disputed property on the coastside of this county, which has, perhaps, more than any other parcel of land in the state been cause for civil action in the courts of this and neighborin counties, has again become the cause of a suit, this time in Santa Cruz county. This suit was filed by Mrs. C. H. Wideman of Santa Cruz in behalf of her husband.

It is the claim of the plaintiff in this action that there is due from the Peninsula Farm Company, who now holds the estate of the late Loren Coburn, $385,000. When the late Satira Coburn, excentric wife of the late Loren Coburn, "poor rich man" of Pescadero, was murdered several years ago, she left her estate to C. H. Wideman, a friend. This action was contested by the Coburn heirs and finally a compromise was agreed upon whereby the Peninsula Farms Co. was to buy the land and to pay half of the purchaes to Widemann and the other half to the Coburn heirs. It is the claim of the plaintiff in the present action that the Coburn heirs have received their portion, but that the greater part of the money due Wideman is sitll unpaid.

UNIVERSAL SERVICE

THE AMERICAN LEGION has a great objective before it. It is hoped by the Legion to put through the national congress a bill providing universal service in time of war. It's a big job, but we believe that the Legion is able to do it.

Now just what would be the result of the universal service bill? Simply this, that should another war occur such as occured in 1917, every person in the United States would be conscripted for government service. It would not be, as it was then, that a man could decide whether he would face the fire of enemy bullets at $30 per month or spend his time (we were almost going to say, waste his time) in ship yards at $17 a day.

Then again there would be universal conscription of financial resources. The man with the big factory would be compelled to turn his plant over to the government for the use of the nation. And why should he not? The factory is only the means with which he makes his living, and is to him no more than the hands of the workman are to him. When the man who works with his hands is drafted into service, his whole earning capacity is taken by the government. Considering this it is obviously unfair to deprive one man of his earning capacity, while another is allowed to accumulate millions.

War is generally considered a horror. It is only a horror to those who suffer. To those who are allowed to profit from war it is a great opportunity. The bill proposed by the Legion would take the opportunity out of war. If one class suffers, all classes suffer. With such a measure in effect we would hear less howling from some of the metropolitan journals whose interests are tied up in sugar plantations in Mexico and other countries. There would be less diplomacy dictated by the manufacturers of guns and munitions.

The boys who served on the battlefields of France are not anxious for a repetition of the experience. They would be willing to fight again, but want to know when they do so that there is a good reason, and that others who stay at home are not taking advantage of the opportunity to increase their fortunes by robbing the dependents whom they are sacrficing their lives for, by exorbitant prices and other methods used during the last war. The American Legion is in this fight to win. All strength to them.

THAT MYSTERIOUS RING

PRACTICALLY every day we are told in all seriousness by the papers of some part of the country that such and such an event has "broken the booze ring." We remember personally of having read of this ring being broken at least fifty times. In fact the "booze" ring appears to be in the same category as that fabulous purse of Merlyns which no matter how often emptied, was always full.

No matter how many arrests are made, no matter how many stills are seized and no matter how many gallons of whiskey and how many barrel of mash are destroyed, the booze ring will not be broken as long as public sentiment allows it to exist. As long as young fools are encouraged to think it smart to buy concoctions, fit only for embalming fluids, by old fools who set them an example, just so long arrests and trials will be needless expense upon the already overtaxed public. The two trials which are now going on in Salinas and San Francisco would be unnecessary if the bootlegger were opposed by a unified public sentiment. When the fact that a man is found to have been drinking is made, a ticket for three months' jolt in the jail, and when the user of illicit liquor is made equally responsible with the man who sells it, then bootlegging will glimmer and go out. But as long as some one is willing to pay an exhorbitant price for a 'rotten" article, some one will be found to sell it.

KILLING THE FARMER'S FRIEND

A rural mail carrier shot a hawk on the road the road the other day and when he went to pick it up, the supposed dead bird took a peck that put out out his eye—for which no one can blame the hawk, says the Salem, Oregon, Capital Journal.

The federal employe broke several laws and regulations. It is against rules to carry a gun on duty, while delivering mail. It is a violation of the state law to shoot on a public highway. A hawk is one of the most beneficial of birds and one of the farmer's best friends, daily destroying its weight in vermin, and as it is useless as food, there is no justification in its slaughter.

As a result of similar wanton slaughter of eagles, hawk and owls, all birds that justify their existence, the balance of nature has been destroyed and a great in crease in rabbits, diggers, gophers and mice is causing an economic loss to every farmer in the land. All of these birds should be protected by law to prevent their extermination, which is now threatened.

BULLDOGGING IS CRUEL

AT Pendleton, Chicago, and other places where so-called round-ups and rodeos are conducted, it is claimed there is no cruelty stunt called "bulldogging a steer." Quite the contrary is true. "Bulldogging" steers was never a legitimate part of the cowboy's occupation. It consists of twisting the animal's neck, pinning it to the ground and holding it by imbedding the teeth in its lower lip. As a public exhibition it is commercial cruelty, permitted and performed only by those who are indifferent and insensible to animal torture.

Home Without Telephone Is Isolated, Indeed

A resident of Sacramento recently parked a new car in front of the state capitol and went to his home nearby. As he felt ill, he summoned a doctor, who informed him that he had smallpox and placed the house under quarantine.

Ten days later, the gentleman reported the theft of his car to the Sacramento police. When they questioned him as to why he had not informed them earlier, he stated that during his ten day quarantine he was confined in a house without a telephone.

J. D. Worthington, manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. here, cites the above newspaper dispatch from Sacramento as an example of the isolation of the modern home without a telephone. "In fact," says Manager Worthington, "no ome is modern that has not a telephone."

"THE BEAUTIFUL CITY" WRITTEN FOR SCREEN

"The Beautiful City," Richard Barthelmess' newest picture, showing at the Sequoia Theatre on Broadway, next Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, is one of the few motion ictures written directly and originally for the screen.

"The Beautiful City" is the work of Edmund Goulding, a clever young Englishman, who is now a director New Pork City made a tremendous impression upon the young Briton when he came to America some years ago, and, then and there, he determined to write a drama or a motion picture around the Manhattan skyline.

After appearing on the stage Goulding turned to motion pictures and attained great success as a scenarits. He adapted Joseph Hergesheimer's story, "Tol'able David," to the screen as Mr. Barthelmess's first starring vehicle. The ultimate success of "Tol'able David," now considered one of the half dozen classics of the screen, is a matter of film history. Mr. Goulding wrote "Fury," directly for the screen for Mr. Barthelmess' use and later rewrote it into a popular novel.

Finally Mr. Goulding transferred his first impressions of New York to paper in writing "The Beautiful City." He made a young Italian immigrant, Tony Gillardi, his hero and, built his story around the lad's readjustments to the new land of promise. When he outlined the story to Mr. Barthelmess, the youny star immediately saw its great acting possibilities. So "The Beautiful City" was purchased and the filming started.

WHAT YOU CAN COUNT ON SEEING

In "Seven Keys to Baldpate," playing at the Sequoia Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 2 and 3, the public will see a comedy that will get its laughs legitimately and cleanly. You can show a Douglas MacLean comedy anywhere, anytime. Yet there's nothing namby-pamby about this one. If you took out the comedy element, there would still be one of the most gripping crook stories ever saw. This melodramatic background is goon enough to stand by itself, but it only serves to emphasize by contrast the dominant comedy note supplied by the stellar comedian.

In translating "Seven Keys to Baldpate" to the screen, MacLean and his staff have made only one important departure from the earlier story. They have added a real girl and a real romance. And they have made this romance the motive for all the action, substituting it for the wager which animated the stage play. With the addition of a short prologue, they sell you and everyone else the idea that Doug is so much in love with the girl that he will try anything. To win the girl he attempts to write a complete novel in twenty-four hours—an unheard of feat. Because the audience is sold on the romance, they'll all be rooting for him to succeed. When obstacles block him, every spectator in every theatre is going to be pulling for him. And that's the kind of appeal that packs 'em in!

All the melodrama, drama, fast action thrills and comedy are there—plus. The plus stands for the additional laughs that Doug MacLean and his crew of gag men have injected. And there are plenty of 'em.

Edith Roberts has the leading feminine role in "Seven Keys to Baldpate." It isn't hard to understand why the star is willing to perform all sorts of herculean feats in the picture to win her.

By way of maintaining the Ziegfeld standard, Betty Francisco, whose lovely blonde beauty is in sharp contrast to Edith Roberts' brunette charm, plays the lady crook. Maym Kelso, Anders Randolph, Crauford Kent and others complete the line-up.

Lactic Acid Causes Fatigue; Also Sours Milk

Why is it, when you make a rapid dash for a street car, that you experience the sensation of fatigue? You will probably reply that it is due to the extra amount of exertion. Dr. A. V. Hill, University College, London, however, goes a step further in answering the question, "What causes fatigue?" He states that fatigue is due to lactic acid which forms in the muscles during exercise.

Lactic acid, by the way, is the substance which gives the sharp, acid taste to sour milk. But its presence in milk denotes something quite different than its presence in the muscles of the body. For in milk lactic acid comes as the result of bacterial action of certain minute bodies known as bacterium acidilactici. In fact, it is these bacterium acidi-lactici which make milk turn sour.

While a method for preventing the formation of lactic acid in the muscle has yet to be discovered, there is one sure way of preventing its formation in milk. That way is the use of a well-iced refrigerator. Bacterium acidi-lactici cannot thrive and multiply in a temperature below fifty degrees. But in a temperature above fifty degrees, even though it may seem quite cool, they multiply rapidly and form lactic acid. Hence to keep milk sweet, fresh, and safe to use, ice is an absolute necessity.

The Critic's Pun

Frank Harris, the novelist and critic, spent the winter on the Riviera, and one day on the Promenade des Anglais in Nice a rich young poet accosted him.

The poet, who belongs to the new expressionist school—he has leanings besides toward diabolism, dadaism and dottism—said with a smile of tremendous self-assurance.

"Ah, good morning, Mr. Harris. What did you think of the volume of poems I sent you last week?"

The critic laughed and answered in his melodious bass voice:

"So bad it couldn't be verse."

True Love

In speaking of the proposed revision of California's marriage laws and the community property bill, Governor Richardson remarked:

"In the old days, subjects like this did not exist. Those were the days of romance and these are the days of finance. In the old days, sweet sayings and sweetmeats used to count, but nowadays it's different.

"'Are you sure he loves you?' Evelyn asked her friend.

"'Of course I'm sure! Why, my dear, every time we're out in a taxicab he keeps his eyes on me all the time—never looks at the meter once.'"

American Legion Seeks Universal Service Bill

Members of the California Posts of The American Legion are soon to have before them the plans of the organization for a state-wide campaign in the interest of the passage of a universal service bill by the national congress. The passage of a universal service bill by Congress is to be one of the major activities of the Legion during the next year.

Support of Senators Samuel M. Shortridge and Hiram W. Johnson and the eleven California members of the House of Representatives is to be sought by the Legion men for the bills which Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas and Representative Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota have framed to cover the subject of universal service for the man power of the country in time of natiional emergency.

"Popular Sovereignty"

In United States history the political term "popular sovereignty" was the theory that the right to decide whether slavery should exist in a territory rested with the people of that territory and not with congress. It was advocated especially by the democrats during the period 1847 to 1861 and its leading champion was Douglas. It was often termed "squatter sovereignty." The latter is simply the colloquial term.

Cleaning Without Odor by the F. Thomas Process

Our many years of experience has taught us that it is impossible to do perfect cleaning with cheap, inferior methods. That is why we found it necessary to invest nearly $500,000 in the equipment of a plant and the establishment of an expert organization to do the quality of work demanded bp our customers.

With the "F. Thomas Process" we not only remove every particle of dust but we return your garments without that usual disagreeable smell of gasoline. Every drop of gasoline we use in cleaning is redistilled and very highly refined.

Raw gasoline—the kind that you buy for your automobile—is full of heavy oils and unfit for cleaning fabrics. t is little better than ordinary distillate and leaves a sickening gasoline smell in your clothes.

Mr. and Mrs. Discher, local residents, have leased the Mrs. James Logan home on Johnson avenue.

Supervisor John MacBain in a short time will start work on Menlo avenue. The popular thoroughfare is to be macadamized and oiled. When completed it is to be one of the finest roads in that section of Menlo Park. It is understood that the property owners abutting on the street are to pay half of the cost of the work.

W. L. Garrison and wife, pioneer residents of Los Banos, spent the week with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Thomas. The visitors expected to remain longer but were called home on account of the death of Mr. Garrison's sister.

James L. Flood, Jr., an unusually bright and exemplary young man, is here from his college in Santa Barbara to spend Thanksgiving week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Flood.

Mr. A. E. Thomas and his charming wife spent Thanksgiving with friends in Oakland.

Thanksgiving has passed and gone. The people of Menlo Park have many things to be thankful for. The health of the citizenry has been excellent during the past year. All have been exceedingly prosperous. The future looks bright. The completion of the Dumbarton bridge early next year means a great deal to the locality. Thousands from the San Joaquin valley will travel through the town that never did before. Many no doubt will invest in real estate here. This means more population which brings more stores and demands for houses. The opening of the new bank will add to the business activity of the town. The cutting up of new tracts where home seekers may find property at cheap figures will induce people to come and live here, the finest spot in the world where strawberries may be eaten with icecream on the spacious lawns hereabouts in December. Menlo Park is the place to invest at present. No other peninsula town offers better returns. Invest now while real estate can be bought at a comparatively low figure.

Word has been received of the marriage in Honolulu on November 8 of Mrs. Dorothy Trabucco of Menlo Park to E. N. McGettigan. Mrs. McGettigan is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon F. Douglass of Menlo Park.

More than $260 was cleared by the Menlo Park Parent-Teacher Association from the bazaar held Friday afternoon and evening at the Menlo Park grammar school. A large crowd enjoyed the grogram of dances, given by the children, and the monologue, "The Showering of Miss Althea Peabody," given by Mrs. Bert Ragan.

Mrs. Aabel, one of the most charming women in Menlo Park, entertained the members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church last Wednesday evening. The young people had a most delightful time under the chaperonage of Mrs. Aabel, who prepared tempting refreshments for the boys and girls.

A lodge of Masons is to be organized here shortly. Forty charter members have already signed the roll. It is probable that the new lodge will erect a handsome building here in the very near future.

M. A. Denton, proprietor of the Peralto Pigeon Farm on the highway, has bought the Brown Pigeon farm on Menlo avenue, consisting of 600 pair of birds, which will be moved to the highway concern. Mr. Denton is very proud of the record made at Riverside recently. He entered 38 birds in the big show and won 28 prizes. Mr. Denton is one of the big pigeon raisers of the state.

Constable Roach has appointed Leo Walsh a deputy constable for the Third township. Leo is a fearless young man with intelligence and precision and will make an excellent officer.

Raymond Kelly, one of the best known and most beloved young men in Menlo Park, was united in marriage to Miss Polsen of San Francisco last Wednesday evening at the home of the brides parents. It was a quite affair, owing to the illness of Mr. Polsen, father of the pretty bride. Mr. Polsen is the well-known San Francisco artist, who is confined to a hospital with a serious sickness. The impressive ceremony was performed by Father O'Kelly, a former pastor of the Church of the Nativity here. Joseph Kelly was best man and Miss Polsen, the charming sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their home in the city. Mr. Kelly is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kelly. His boyhood was spent in Menlo Park. The young couple have the best wishes of all for a happy wedded life.

It is reported that the Ententon property, consisiting of twenty acres in Stanford Park, has been sold to Palo Alto parties. A part of the holding is the old George Meekin home, with a dwelling and an apricot orchard.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Cook at the Palo Alto hospital Wednesday. Mr. Cook is the local electrician. The Cooks' Thanksgiving was a precious one, but it will be some little time before the little gift will be able to eat turkey, the patron of the holiday.

Professor O. M. Carrington of Redwood City on the evening of December 4, will put on his "Bits of Blarnep," the operetta that has won him fame, in the school auditorium. The proceeds will go towards the new orchestra recently established in the grammar school. The performance is under the auspices of the P.-T. A. which is doing so much for the local school.

Woodside Notes

From the days of Tubal-Cain until the present time the occupation of smith has been held in especial honor and esteem. Indeed during the Middle Ages his was the only trade deemed worthy of countenance by the lords and nobles. The armorer and smith had a seat near the head of the lords table and skill at the forge was envied and sometimes striven for by nobles themselves. Siegfried forged his own sword when his armorer proved unreliable and history records that Ricahrd, the Lion-hearted, was no mean blackcmith himself, but quite capable of repairing his damaged armor or building himself a new sword.

Louis Bellmont, the newly acquired blacksmith of Woodside, comes of a line of smiths running back for fourteen generations. One of his ancestors was chief armorer for that crafty king, Louis XI of France, and another may well have modeled the cross-bow with which William Tell performed his feats of skill and valor. For he was born and raised and learned his trade among the mountains of Switzerland, where the spirit of the medieval guild still prevails, where a man must be a master of his trade before he is recognized by his craft and where a craftsman takes the same pride in the product of his skill that an author takes in his book or an artist in his picture.

George Hansen, who has charge of the Gilman herd has had a wide experience with dairy cattle, ranging from Sweden, where he was born, through South Africa, Australia and the Argentine Republic.

Many a Woodside turkey has ceased to gobble this week and our Sunday morning rest is more secure.

Andrew Nelson and family motored to Watsonville to make a part of a family re-union party on Thanksgiving Day.

The Skyline boulevard carried its share of the traffic to and from the big game on Saturday last and the Woodside Inn was cleared of its food supplies at both the noon and evening dinner hours.

Mrs. L. C. Burnett and children journeyed to San Francisco to celebrate the holiday with her sister, Mrs. Jackson of Dolores street.

accounts of the tragedy. Littlejohn was a thorough seaman and for that reason, it was thought he might be safe on some island, but no doubt, he went down with his ship in northern waters.

Charles Peterson, known as Charles Picken, was a member of the ill-starred crew. He was a local market hunter, who during the winter months killed thousands of ducks for the San Francisco market. He sculled on the birds at sleep in the sloughs and it is said at times would kill a many as 75 teal in a single shot. He was the best and most skillful hunter of his time. During the summer he would follow the threshing machines as a sack sewer. Farming was the big industry around the peninsula in those by-gone days, and Picken always found steady employment in both his occupations. He was a popular young man and his loss was deeply mourned. It was his first trip north. Before leaving he confided to his old friend, Nelson Paddock, the veteran printer, that something told him he was going to his fate, but he could not resist the special invitation of his friend, George Littlejohn, to go north and so he sailed on the schooner that never returned.

Chase Littlejohn was for some years the assistant ornithologist of the University of California museum. In the year 1907, he went to Alaska, where he collected rare specimens of birds and mammals. This was perhaps the rarest collection ever brought to California. The big collection was sent to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington. Mr. Littlejohn was highly praised by the authorities at Washington for his ability in securing so fine a collection for the public.

Although Mr. Littlejohn has been a busy man he has found time to devote some years to the public work. He has served two terms as town trustee, during which time the first paved streets were put down, and the present sewer system established and for twenty-one years he served as trustee of the Redwood City grammar school district, only resigning a few years ago. He gave his valuable time freely and was always honest, efficient and diligent in his work for the public weal.

The elder Littlejohn passed away in 1907 at the ripe old age of 93. He and his son were the builders of Redwood City, interwoven with the early history of that town, and were always progressive and honest in its advancement.

Chase Littlejohn saw the little settlement of a few houses or rather shacks grow to a city of no mean dimensions. He sees its great future as the industrial center of the peninsula. He has jealously watched its growth. It will be difficult for him in the evening of life to take up an abode elsewhere, away from the scenes of his life work and from the place he loves so well and which holds so many memories for him. No one can read the history of Redwood City without connecting Chase Littlejohn with it. Wherever he may locate he will always have with him the best wishes of the people of Redwood City, who owe him so much.
